Was once alive, now feels no pain,
Never walks, but leaves a trail.

A Little Halloween History Lesson

The Celts (who lived 2,000 years ago in the area that is now Ireland, the United Kingdom, and northern France) celebrated their new year on November 1. This day marked the end of summer and the harvest and the beginning of the dark, cold winter, a time of year that was often associated with human death. Celts believed that on the night before the New Year, the boundary between the worlds of the living and the dead became blurred. On the night of October 31, they celebrated Samhain- when it was believed that the ghosts of the dead returned to earth. During the celebration, the Celts would light bonfires and wear costumes (typically consisting of animal heads and skins) to ward off these roaming ghosts.
